A gentleman's horses when they run away with him are in circumstances over which he has no control. What is the difference between a hill and a pill? One is hard to get up and the other is hard to get down. This doesn't apply to KUSH'S PILLS.

Spicer. - There was a knot of sea-captains in a store at Honolulu, the keeper of which had just bought a barrel of black pepper. Old Captain — came in, and, seeing the pepper, took up a handful of it.

"What do you put this in for?" said he to the store-keeper.

"Peas!" replied the store-keeper; "there isn't a pea in it."

Taking up a handful as he spoke, he appealed to the company. They all looked at it, and plunged their hands into the barrel, and bit a kernel or so, and then gave it as their universal opinion that there wasn't a pea in it.

"I tell you there is," said the old captain, again scooping up a handful; "and I'll bet ten shillings on it."

"Well," said he, "spell that," pointing to the "pepper" painted on the side of the barrel.

THE FOUR-LEAVED CLOVER.
"To find four-leaved clover indicates great success in love and sublimity."—Fairy Legend.
At the old days when we were young,
Ere either played the lover,
When where the tiny brooklets sung
We sought the four-leaved clover;
Our first blind gropings on the way
We since so long have treaded,
And in each promise of the day
Some disappointment treaded.
Soon as our childish hearts could read,
Our lore was fairy stories,
Of Jack the Giant-Killer's deed,
And Goody Two-shoes' glories;
Then when the rain upon the grass
Was blue and green and yellow,
I barked for you the shoes of glass,
And called you Cinderella.
Then in pure innocence we went
Down our paths together,
And for the four-leaved clover
Whole weeks of summer weather;
Your hair was golden, mine was brown,
Our faces tanned and ruddy,
And often mother-eyes would frown
At dresses torn and muddy.
But what cared we? The Fairy told
The story of the clover:
And what cared we for young or old,
For maid or for lover?
Long sunny days we spent
The leaves that never wither,
Nor ever dreamed nor cared nor thought
Of how came life, or wither.
Oh, was that not a glorious time,
Ere sense of good or evil,
The type of Eden's glorious prime
Bereft the believed the Devil?
But she believed, and in her fall
She never learned to cover;
Those leaves were lent to cover;
The mystic four-leaved clover.
With Time we grew, and Knowledge came,
At once the Lord and Demon;
Our young cheeks flushed a brighter flame,
Each was the other's leman;
Yet still we groped, though more apart,
Our sunny life-paths over,
And sought, but with strange beating heart,
That wondrous four-leaved clover.
And further still we strayed aside,
And all with us was o'er;
You found a husband—more, beside,
I linger still, a hale old man,
With you my only lover;
There are who can't, there are who can—
I never found the clover.

BIRDS OF PASSAGE.

BY GEORGE H. COOPER.

The bird of passage, through the sky
Sweeps on, his home to find;
There is no track before his eye,
He haweth none behind.
He leaves no track, except he be
A passing shadow dim;
That like a silent memory
One moment follows him.
And men are birds of passage, too,
That fly from shore to shore;
An hour, a day, and then we view
Their shadow nevermore.
Ayon, with dark or sunny wing,
Not knowing these have passed,
The birds that future seasons bring
Sweep onward like the bat.

A parson, reading the first line or so of a chapter in the Bible, the clerk, by some mistake or other, after him. The parson read as follows: "The an austere man, and made atonement for the sins of the people." The clerk, in reply, made ointment.

"Did you take the note, and did you see Mr. Thompson, Jack?"
"Yes, sir."
"And how was he?"
"Why, he looked very well; but"
"Blind! What do you mean?"
"Why, while I wur in the my hat wur, and it wur on my"

EMBROIDERED FOOT-STOOL.

I say, conductor, do you know who that lady is, there with a book?
 I know her a few minutes.
 I know she's splendid.
 I know she is.
 How does she live?
 I believe.
 I'm happy that seat with her.
 Ask her?
 But that would be out of order.
 I don't want to be if she was not willing to have you occupy it.
 Of course you claim to be a gentleman?
 Oh I certainly. If you are acquainted with her, give me an introduction; that is, if you have no objections.
 Certainly not.
 How far is she going, do you know?
 Rochester, I believe.
 Fixing his hair, mustache, and whiskers in becoming style, he followed the conductor, who, on reaching the seat where the lady sat, said, with a peculiar twinkle in his eye,
 "My wife, Mr. ———, of New-York, who assures me he will do before reaching Detroit, if he does not form your acquaintance."
 The gentleman stammered, grew red in the face, faltered out some excuses, and retired to his seat, leaving the lady in the hands of her husband to enjoy the jokes.

FACETIE.

MORRIS was going to Exeter. Some people seem so nicely stupid that one feels relieved even to hear them say that they have "half a mind."

Railways are aristocrats. They look every man to know his own station, and to stop there.

A Pennsylvania farmer states that he cured his headache of the Grecian bend by putting water on and holding her out in the sun till she warped again!

An Indian clergyman, not long since, was called to a Irish girl, who asked how much he charged for his body. He replied, "I charge nothing, but you must give me a good dinner, and a new coat when I go to the door, he was accused by the judge in the remark that she had come to be the minister, but perceiving that she was alone, he continued,
 "I will not do it for a dollar and a half."

Young GENTLEMAN in Cafe. "Now, then, Sherry, don't you see the Gent's a cut above a Tweedie? He wants a Herald."

The question is, What Paper does he really want?

FINAL RESULT—The Peat cut appears, the Culprits fly into Captivity.

This is a Swell who wants the New York Herald.

These are the Herald Browsers, engaged in a gentle Allection among themselves.

Sudden wake-up of the peripatetic News-men to the fact that there is a Customer to be had.

General stampede in the direction of all the Tribunes, Times, Stars, Herald, etc., within a mile or so.

GRAY LINEN APRON FOR GIRL FROM 4 TO 6 YEARS OLD.

GRAY LINEN APRON FOR GIRL FROM 8 TO 5 YEARS OLD.

THRONES FOR THREE.

That first sunny day by the sea,
Away in the bright little bay,
When we wandered, the happiest three,
So careless and buoyant and gay!

Even Maud, with the seventeen years
She had managed at last to attain,
Protested she felt like a child,
Quite joyous and playful again.

And Minnie agreed, though severe,
As one who "propriety" played—
She was older than Maud by a year,
And of course must be frigidly staid.

We waited the tide's going down,
Till the rosy wet sand it had cleared;
Then, through the skin foam of the waves,
Three green little islands appeared.

Then the girls, with a cry of delight,
Would each have an isle of her own—
Would be queen in her absolute right.
I might take the third isle for my throne.

What slippery kingdoms they were,
With sea-weed all slimy and green!
It was pleasant enough to get there,
But to stay was too much for each queen.

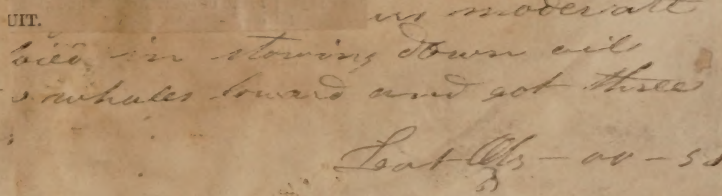

To abdicate both were disposed;
But I, as the neighboring state,
Must of course have my word about thrones,
And forced them to wait and to wait.

At last, when of fun we'd enough,
My forces I blandly withdrew;
And Maud owned that the island for her
Must at least be an island for two.

Of that mind she has ever remained,
Time could not the mood overwhelm;
For years we together have reigned,
And Home is the name of our realm.

ECRU ORGANDY GARDEN HAT.

THE ORPHANS.

ORPHANS! the word sounds plaintive, now
That crystals hang on every bough,
And the sad wind sighs mournfully.
Where in warm June the wandering bee
Will blithely traffic 'mong the flowers,
The hickering snow unceasing showers;
And Frost writes on the window-pane
Bright hieroglyphs of Winter's reign.
And now the cottage fire beside,
The shepherd's child, with woman's pride,
Tends, with a mother's care, the lamb
Found pining by its frozen dam;
While the two dogs, with watchful eyes,
Regard the foundling with surprise,
Tinged with an honest kindness
That has some pity for distress,
And for the orphan's loneliness.

NO KING.
